

Healthy Schools London is an award programme that reaches out to children across the London boroughs to ensure schools are offering the highest quality provision for well-being and healthy lifestyles. Miss Taylor and Miss Stephenson have been working behind the scenes to audit the schools provision of healthy lifestyles and well-being resources for all pupils. The project they established was called 'Plant to Plate' in which every child had the opportunity to learn how to plant, grow and harvest different fruits and vegetables. The growing garden is in full bloom on the roof terrace and some of the children have already harvested and tasted radishes and herbs! As the project progresses, we hope to expand the opportunities children have to grow and prepare meals with home-grown healthy produce.

Heathfield Academy has now joined the 810 other schools in London that have been accredited with London Healthy Schools Bronze and Silver award! We are now on track to go for gold in the new academic year!
